Nothing very fancy but if you'd like to change the wallpaper of your Active Desktop every few seconds, you might find this application useful. Use - Run the application. Set the application to point at a folder that contain jpg, jpeg, bmp, dib and/or png image files. Set the amount of time (In seconds) between wallpaper swaps and click the start button. The application puts an icon onto the system tray, so you can close the application and wallpaper swapping will continue. Right click the system tray icon to stop swapping or to unload the application. New version fixes a few bugs, allows longer intervals (From 1 second to 60 Mins) and is more random.
