The Asbru Website Manager is a ready-to-use cross-browser/cross-platform tool, which enables non-technical users to edit, add, and delete HTML pages, images, and other files on their web server through a web browser. Users can browse their way to the web pages they wish to change and edit directly in a WYSIWYG HTML editor with a familiar word processor like user interface. The key features of the Asbru Website Manager are: text formatting: font color, background color, CSS style sheet support, table editing, form editing, print page, insertion of media including images, Flash animations and Java Applets, hyperlink management, spell checking, frames with other local/external web pages, absolute positioning, cleaning of content, DOM inspector, optional XHTML output, meta information, advanced scripting and a user database where an unlimited number of website administrators can be added. The tool is easy to re-brand for web design agencies to resell as a private label solution.
