This is VERY useful for auto-mailing a single binary file to a user that enters their email address on a website form. This script is a modification of Matt Wright's FormMail.cgi. Modifications include: Form user email addresses are required, Once received, the script auto-forwards an email to the form user that contains a text body and an attachment file which can be binary if desired and the owner can log the email to a file, send a confirmation of the request, do both, or neither.
