The Caffeinated Content plugin uploads new content to your WordPress blog, based on keywords you specify. But it needs to be run manually each time. Get rid of that limitation by using the Caffeinated Content Scheduler to automatically trigger (via a cron-based schedule) the plugin to upload new content without you having to run it manually. You just set up the blog details once, pick your keywords and source, and save the details. Then sit back and watch new content appear on your blog every day, handsfree, whilst you get on with other things. (NB: You must already own the Caffeinated Content plugin)
