This hit counter uses an MS Access database to track hits to any number of pages on your web site, but you don't need to know databases to get it to work. You put a single tag on your page and it does the rest, there's no need to manage the database. It comes with a help file describing all of the additional properties, like displaying the counter as plain text or using images. It can be added to your toolbox and dropped into pages using design view.
