This is a full HTML5 script. But don't worry because it works just as good in older Internet Explorer browsers. This script is flexible and perfect feature for showcasing great photography while displaying subtle text/description on the bottom. Using this script is really simple. It comes with emotion evoking piano background music and a minimalistic two level sticky menu down the bottom. All colors can be altered via the CSS stylesheet. This script never shows a half loading image. It instead shows a beautiful loading message before fading the picture into the screen. Music is played via the HTML5 audio tag which falls back to Flash music player for incompatible browsers. The download includes the full ActionScript3 source project for the flash player in case you wish to extend its capabilities in future.
