InkTank is a PHP-based online library system designed to archive “fan fiction,” stories written using an already-imagined world. It has many features tailored for such, including the ability to categorize stories by characters, genres, and “pairings.” It also includes an awards system for highlighting outstanding works. Archivists use Archangel — the companion to InkTank — a desktop application, running on Windows or Macintosh, that can conveniently modify stories, authors, system messages, awards, and more.
