JMailbox is a complete web based email client written in 100% ASP using the JMail API. No other components or DLLs are required. This is not a replacement for your usual email client. Rather it is a handy web application for when you are on the road and still need full access to your mail. It is very easy to install and use. Just unzip all the files and place them in a single folder in your website. To get it to work you will have to change the relevant server/password details in the file "config.asp" and that's it.
