JPETo (James's Publishing & Editing Tool) is an object oriented content management and community enabling system, built from august 2000 until now as a simple publishing tool for people without vast computer knowledge. It's used for several projects until now and growing from week to week. While developing JPETo we were always looking to keep JPETo flexible, but just as complex as necessary. Some other strengths of JPETo are the various content scheduling functions and the short time-to-market term. Free 30-days evaluation copy available.
