MiniChat2 is a chat application that consists of a client and server part. Both sides are written with the Java language. The client side consists of two Java applets. One is used to chat and the other only displays a connected user list. Both of these applets connect to a different port on the server. It is also available as *.exe file for Windows NT server. The server as class files are available on request (Source files: US $100, License for the exe file: US $25). It is also possible to place the public chat at your page by pasting the applet tags.
