MO Auto add terms is a small module that automatically assigns terms to your site pages. Useful for taxonomies used as a site index! Say you create a new page about a feature found on a Unix platform. You think it would be a good idea to add Unix as one of the site index terms. Now... Problem 1. Say you have 100 pages. Are you going to read back 100 pages to see whether the term Unix should be added? Problem 2. The next day, you create yet another page with the word Unix. This is a new day, and the main topic of the page isn't Unix... The MO Auto add terms module helps you maintain the index of all these pages. Each time CRON runs against your website, a set of pages is re-indexed. Pages that you edit and save will be indexed immediately. In both cases, no terms will be missed. The system will automatically assign to each node all the terms currently available in the taxonomy.
