How about the idea of Electronic Business Card? This Perl script is very useful, if you want to give your site visitors free web space but you don't want to use a lot of resources. Your visitors fill out a form and instantly create their static homepages which look like a bussiness card. They can put this address to their email signatures and whatever. Each homepage takes about 2 KB of space. The script also gives you the ability to customize it with you needs by providing all of the html parts as templates.
