A web-based timecard that allows users to input their hours and then print their hours out at the end of the time period (in PDF/HTML/Text format). It also has support for creating a template if the user works the same hours every week. After submitting his/her timecard, the user can start a new timecard, and the old one is archived. OATS has a well-developed administration center to make it easy to log in as another user, clean out tables, and update the FAQ.
