Quite a mouth-watering business and perfect for budding entrepreneurs. Not all restaurants have the desire to have delivery services of their own or can afford one. But are always willing to serve any customer who loves their menu. You don't need a restaurant or a fancy storefront. You can even be a bunch of students. All your delivery personnel have to do is receive orders from customers, order food at the restaurant and deliver it to the customers. Another business model is much simpler where the restaurant hires your business to carry out its delivery service.
