Most survey scripts handle radio buttons only, but what if you want to allow your visitors to enter more choices? Or get free (numeric) input and calculate averages? That's where OWP comes in. It's fully configurable - including the language - and well documented. The new version comes with a (simple) logfile browser and many more options, like a configurable minimum and maximum value for Average inputs, averages are displayed in decimals and can be sorted, and even select lists (drop down and multi) are supported!
