PageRater is a brand new system created so web masters can offer a "rate this page" system on their web site's easily, securely and professionally. The system works by taking the page id (given when you add a page to the admin interface) gathering all the ratings from the database and then finding the average, finally displaying the average page rating on the screen. A visitor can rate each "page" only once, then there told what rating they gave that page. Finally a script has also been created so you can display top rated pages, either on a separate page of your choice or anywhere else on your website, the code for this can be found in the readme.php
