phpVID is a youtube.com clone which can be used for running your own video sharing website like metacafe, dailymotion, google video, yahoo videos and others. The videos can be streamed from the custom made or pre built flv flash players. The URL's are search engine friendly and gets picked up by search engines easily. The videos get converted to flash when they are uploaded and your logo can be placed on the player as well so when users use the code from your site the name of your site appears on all sites that code is used. The software also has groups section where users can create groups and share their thoughts with each other. The integrated ajax modules make it easier for users to browse the site and add comments on videos or see a particular users videos. We have also added an extensive admin panel which will let you manage the site easily. Please feel free to contact us at any time, if you have any questions.
