Ruboard is easy to use, simple, configurable web board - a place where people can discuss things interactively using their browsers. Although initially based on Matthew Wright's WWWBoard, Ruboard has been completely rewritten to improve stability, configurability and ease of use. Main features include: Stability with file locking, Compatibility with WWWBoard, User registration and password protection options, Ability to post messages, images and url's is controllable through passwords, IP blocking, Multiple language support (Russian and English for now), Controllable size of board, Support for multiple boards, A lot of visual enhancements and configuration options, Can add advertisement on every generated page, and more.
