With The PollMaster, questions can be added easily, and you can have as many answers as you want. You can group a series of them, and they will be displayed all together. Or you can access each question individually. The results are calculated for each question and can be displayed as a group or individually as well. It keeps track of each user, so they may only answer each individual question once. This helps eliminate skewed results, and it uses template files, so you can define the look and feel of the question and result pages.
