Votesie is a script that lets you create a poll or issue for your visitors to vote on and then see the results. You can choose various background and font colors for your poll booth so that it can fit in with the rest of your website. When a person submits a vote, a page showing the current results of the vote is shown with a little bar graph and the total number of votes along with the percentage of people who voted that way. There is a minimal guard against "ballot box stuffing" based on the IP address of the user, but this does have its limitations. Best of all, if you have problems, just email the author for friendly support!
