With the help of w3 Upload, your web user can upload files directly via their web browser. With a few simple steps their files will be on their way to your server. Click the browse button and select which file to upload. Then click transmit to send the files. As a developer, you can specify exactly where the uploaded files will be saved. You can even save them directly into a database or attach them to an outgoing email. This way your customers can attach their own files to emails sent with w3 Jmail.
