Do you want visitors to be able to contact you, but don't want to display your email address all over your website -- to be easily picked up by spammers harvesting email addresses from websites? The Max Contact system completely and effectively hides your email address. But that's not the only thing it does. It has a place for Nature of Request in addition to the usual place for name, address, subject and message. Nature of Request can be customized to send automatic reply emails when the visitor clicks the Send Email Message button. Max Contact includes complete documentation for easy setup, install and usage.
